Additional information

Additional information: The house will take you away from the city stress, without alienating you - Belogradchik is as close as a ten-minute walk. "Albacita" stands for "white town" in old Italian, and the place is unknown even to most Bulgarians - it's situated out of the little town of Belogradchik, just beside an ancient Roman Stronghold.

Up to nine people can be accommodated in the house; the second floor has two rooms and an apartment. On the third floor there is a room for three people with separate bathroom. The kitchen is open to the living room, which spans through the whole ground-floor. The view from the terrace is the mountain range and the Belogradchik rocks. In the basement there is a fitness room and another bathroom. Villa Albacta has separate water supply.

mountain biking Activities:
Nature around Belogradchik gives you the possibility for walks or mountain biking. Nearby is the Magoura cave and some other caves that are accessible without special equipment or skills.
